Sale of Henkel's Asian Electronic Cleaning Chemicals Business to Nippon Kayaku

- BDA acted as exclusive financial advisor to Henkel AG & Co. KGaA ("Henkel") on the divestment of its Asian electronic cleaning chemicals business (the "Business") to Nippon Kayaku Co., Ltd. ("Nippon Kayaku")
- Part of Henkel's Adhesives Technologies Division, the Business supplies mission-critical cleaning chemicals for LCD panel and semiconductor production for blue-chip clients in Mainland China, Japan and Taiwan
- A stable, high-margin but non-core operation, Henkel engaged BDA to run a global process for this attractive asset on the strength of three previous successful BDA-led exits in the region
- BDA leveraged its global network to access potential buyers worldwide, spanning Asia, Europe and the US. Strategic buyers were contacted as a priority while selected financial sponsors with relevant portfolio companies also participated. The bidding process was tightly managed, resulting in multiple attractive offers, further leading to value maximisation for the seller through strong competitive tension
- BDA's Shanghai and Tokyo offices led the transaction, coordinating closely to great effect in another example of successful cross-office execution
- Going forward the Business will operate under Nippon Kayaku's Functional Chemical, helping expand its LCD and FPD market share and access previously untapped customers and geographies. A Transitional Services Arrangement – negotiated as part of the transaction - will smooth the operational transfer
- This transaction once again underlines BDA's strong position in advising multinationals to divest non-core operations in Asia – particularly those with region-wide assets requiring multi-country coverage
