Asset

Transaction summary

- Bose Corporation, founded in 1964, is a leading global audio company, best known for its premium noise-canceling headphones, speakers, and Hi-Fi systems
- Bose's automotive audio division supplies premium audio systems to global carmakers such as Porsche, Cadillac, and Nissan
- The Tijuana facility comprises advanced manufacturing equipment and R&D laboratories, with a book of business exceeding US$500m in annual value
- Luxshare Precision Industry is a US$40bn+ publicly traded manufacturer of electronic components and peripherals, best known as the primary assembler of Apple's AirPods
- Luxshare, headquartered in China, has rapidly expanded its presence in both North America and the global automotive supply chain via a series of acquisitions to both reduce reliance on revenue from Apple and to leverage positive trends in the automotive EV market
- With this acquisition, Luxshare has reinforced its position in the automotive supply chain and becomes Bose's primary manufacturing partner for its automotive division
- BDA executed a tightly controlled sale process, engaging only a select group of potential buyers pre-approved by Bose's leadership that BDA thoroughly vetted from not only a financial perspective but also from their potential as a long-term manufacturing partner
- Multiple site visits and negotiations were conducted across different time zones, legal jurisdictions, and languages
- With this divestment, Bose can leverage Luxshare's international manufacturing capabilities to better serve its international client base and has further transformed their operations to better align as a designer and engineer of premium acoustic systems
- Navigating geopolitical tensions and facilitating a transaction involving a Chinese blue-chip company in North America added significant complexity
- BDA's advisory ensured a smooth transition, highlighting its expertise in cross-border dealmaking and reinforcing its capabilities in optimizing global supply chains for North American clients
